On behalf the National Institutions of Human Rights, the National Ombudsman highlighted that they have confidence that the Global Compact for Migration will include concrete measures to end expressions of Racism, Xenophobia and Intolerance

DGC/413/17

Puerto Vallarta, Jalisco. December 5, 2017

Before the worrying and recent manifestations of racism, xenophobia and intolerance against migrants, the national Ombudsman, Luis Raúl González, expressed on behalf of the Global Alliance of National Human Rights Institutions (GANHIR) some words. He expressed that it has confidence that the Global Compact for a Safe, Neat and Regular Migration will fulfill the international responsibilities in human rights, mainly the related ones to non-discrimination and to a decent job.

At representing GANHRI, in Puerto Vallarta, Jalisco, González Pérez voted against manifestations of hate and intolerance, and requested access to Justice for people who are in a migration context, as well as the existence of a broad State's view upon human mobility.

He underlined the importance on the signature and ratification of agreements on different issues such as in labor and health. He exemplified the case upon of the ILO's agreement on Migration for Employment, which ensures social security access, a dignified wage and an environment free of discrimination, and violence for workers (men and women). It also safeguards the rights related to children and adolescents, gender perspective and health attention - including legal and psychological counsel for migrants-

Jürg Lauber, Permanent Representative of Switzerland at the United Nations in New York, moderated the session of Retrospection - A look behind Phase I-. Before him, González Pérez pointed out that GANHRI stand out for the Global Compact to continue, besides, with accountability, due there is no implementation without commitment, and without a measurable progress, there is no appropriate conditions for as-essment.

In this sense, he presented the Global Alliance's principles on accountability at the national and international level, which are consistency, transparency; independency and accountability; participation and integration; oriented results, and interchange and apprenticeship.

He raised that the great challenge is to establish a mechanism that may measure the accomplishment of the Global Compact and reiterated the importance in ratifying the agreements as the State's evidence of coherence, that leads them - mainly- to take into account the recommendations of the International Organisms, Treaty bodies, and Universal Periodical Exam mechanism. This will also enable them to accomplish the Goals of the 2030 Agenda, because they have indicators and we should not let them out of the Global Compact.

He highlighted that, independently the migratory status of the people, the Global Alliance expects that the Global Compact will comply fully with the international standards of protection, including the right of victims to access justice and repair of the damage caused by a human rights violation.

He underlined that we all should provide protection and accompaniment to migrant children and adolescents and must ensure health attention, legal and psychological guidance, among others. He also stressed that we should promote national processes for the implementation of the Pact and clear supervision for the fulfillment of the 2030 Agenda, mainly within those goals and indicators related to migratory issues, for which he hopes that the agreement include a broad, certain, organized, regular and responsible view of people who are in a mobility context.

González Pérez said that the agreement must develop a technical, independent and responsible organism that should monitor its implementation and accountability. Meanwhile, the National Human Rights Institutions, the civil society, unions, interested actors, migrants and their relatives must integrate to process of presentation of the agreements and should exchange reports and present their own information.

On behalf of the National Institutions of Human Rights, he thanked the opportunity to participate in this exercise. He also validated its disposition to share experiences and best practices for the application of labor and migrant policies based on the respect of human rights and people's dignity. He finally expressed his support for the consolidation of the Pact.

THE OMBUDSMAN DEMANDED AMERICAN FUNCTIONARIES RESPECT TO MIGRANTS' DIGNITY AND TO END THE SPEECH OF HATE AGAINST THEM

DGC/404/2017

December 1, 2017

The National Ombudsman, Luis Raúl González Pérez, conducted an intensive working tour in Washington D.C., United States of America. In it he sue to functionaries of the Department of State and of the Department of the internal Security, as well to legislators, respect to dignity of the Mexican people who are in migration context, as well as to end the speech of hate against them.

He had separate meetings with the Deputy Undersecretary for the East Hemisphere, John Creamer, and with the responsible of Mexico's relations, Colleen Hoey of the Department of State, as well as with high Congress functionaries as Brandon Yoder and Caleb McCarry. In them, the Ombudsman presented his concern about the dignified treatment that our fellow nationals should have, as well as respect to due process and he insisted in the existence of a humanitarian face in the migratory context.

He sustained that his presence in the USA capital aimed to raise the voice in order to make understand that any migratory policy, as well as the right of nations to regulate its migration, must adopt as principle the right to dignity.

González Pérez, accompanied by the Fifth General Visitor of the CNDH, Edgar Corzo Sosa, also met with the Mexican Ambassador, Gerónimo Gutiérrez; with the representative of our country before de OAS, Jorge Lomónaco, as well as with the United States Senate Counselors. He let them know the actions that the National Organism has carried out in favor of our Mexican conational who live in the American Union and those who were repatriated.

He visited academic and investigation centers, as well as civil organism's headquarters and their leaders such as Alexandra Ellerbeck, from the Committee for Journalists Protection and Laura Vázquez, responsible of Unidos US. Likewise, he presented in presence of the academic community of the Instituto México of Woodrow Wilson Center the facing human right situation in our country.

THE CNDH AFFIRMS THAT TO LIVE CHILDHOOD AND ADOLESCENCE WITHOUT BARRIERS, REPRESSIONS OR BRAKES, ALLOWS GIRLS, BOYS AND ADOLESCENTS TO PARTICIPATE IN A FULL WAY IN SOCIETY

DGC/417/17

December 9, 2017

Consuelo Olvera, Executive Secretary of the CNDH, presented the book Túuri, written by Refugio Pereida. She highlighted the urgent need of protection demanded by girls, boys and adolescents. They request this urgent protection, mainly when children and adolescents live with disabilities, in a rural and indigenous community because they are victims of worst repudiation by their condition.

The event was carried out at Forum 2 of Casa del Lago “Juan José Arreola” of UNAM, at the Bosque de Chapultepec. Olvera Treviño noted that the CNDH calls upon society and authorities to take into consideration disability as an evolving concept, resulting from interaction between persons with disabilities and barriers, due to an attitude and because of the environment that does not enables their full and effective participation in society, in equal conditions with others.

After mentioning that this explanation also is established in the United Nations Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities (CRPD), she underlined that Mexico is committed to fulfill with this international instrument, which was ratified more than 10 years ago.

NO ONE IS ABOVE OR OUTSIDE THE LAW, NOR HUMAN RIGHTS AND PERSON’S DIGNITY. THE CNDH REAFFIRMS THIS CONVICTION

DGC/418/17

December 10, 2017

The National Commission of Human Rights (CNDH) reaffirms its conviction: no one must be above or outside the law, nor above fundamental rights and person’s dignity. Thus, the National Organism affirms its fundamental goal to accompany victims of human rights violations and to end the impunity that is prevailing in this field.

In occasion of the Human Rights Day- December 10-, the CNDH remembers that dignity is the most appreciated asset in all persons, and that nothing could hurt more than to be violated, mainly when the offense is consequence of an abuse of power.

This date leads to reaffirm the National Commission commitment to serve as a counterpart of the abusive exercise of public power, as well as to be a referent in the interaction balance among authorities and the governed, based on human dignity and law application.

At the 69th anniversary of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, we recognized there is a lot more to do for the prerogatives contained in it. Although the catalogue of rights has extended and so the mechanism for their protection, the risks and aggressions against human dignity have assumed new forms so there is still a lot to do in order for these prerogatives to be reflected in people’s daily life.

THE NATIONAL OMBUDSMAN REQUESTED TO ATTEND THE FAIR CLAIMS ABOUT RESOURCES, POLICIES, DEVELOPMENT AND CONSTITUTIONAL RECOGNITION OF AFRO-DESCENDANTS IN IBERO AMERICA

Oaxaca de Juárez, Oaxaca. December 12, 2017

Luis Raúl González Pérez opened the Seminary “The Commitment of the National Institutions of Human Rights with Afro-descendant People Facing the 2030 Agenda”. He expressed that their rights must be effective and valid in the practice. He was accompanied in the presidium by Iris Miriam Ruiz Class, FIO’s president and the Ombudswoman of the Associated Free State of Puerto Rico; Julia Unger, Director of Pro-FIO Project; Byron Cárdenas, from the UN Human Rights Office in Mexico; María Elisa Velázquez, National Coordinator of the National Anthropology and History Institute (INAH); and Rosa María Castro Salinas, President of the Women Association of Oaxaca Coast A.C. (AMCO).

The National Ombudsman affirmed that the fair claims about the assignation of resources, inclusion, affirmative action policies, comprehensive development and constitutional recognition are urgent debts of the National States and society with afro-descendent population in Iberoamerica. Thus, beyond norms and declarations, realities must change and we all must contribute with fairer and without discrimination, cultures and inclusive societies, through the National Human Rights Institutions (INDH), laws and practical implementation.

The Ombudsman Ibero-American Federation (FIO), as well as the National Commission of Human Rights (CNDH) and the German Cooperation agency organized this encounter. In this sense, González Pérez underlined that the 2030 Agenda and the International Decade for People of African Descent allows empowering these individuals’ rights and provides validity for “not leaving anyone behind”, which represents a commitment with human rights principles for equality and non-discrimination.

THE CNDH AND THE IRELAND HUMAN RIGHTS AND EQUALITY COMMISSION SHARED EXPERIENCES UPON TRAFFICKING AND CONCUR IN COUNTRIES' RESPONSIBILITY FOR ITS ATTENTION

DGC/444/17

December 30, 2017

The National Ombudsman, Luis Raúl González Pérez, stressed that joint-responsibility of countries, as well as a comprehensive perspective must attend human trafficking. He also noted that dialogue between institutions of human rights is fundamental to move forward in the eradication of this crime.

He said that the National Commission of Human Rights (CNDH) and the Ireland Human Rights and Equality Commission share a common agenda within fundamental rights defense and protection of victims of human trafficking; consequently, they will intensify experiences exchange.

The Ombudsman welcomed Siobhan Mullally, Director of Legislative Committee and Policies Review of the Human Rights and Equality Commission of Ireland, and President of the Group of Experts against Human Trafficking of the European Council, who participated at her visit framework in the session of the Advisory Council of the CNDH. He said that the CNDH requested authorities of the three levels of government to take decisive and effective actions so that when there happens cases of national or foreign people who are victims of human trafficking, there should not exist forgetfulness, indifference nor impunity, besides providing them support, accompaniment and assistance to overcome their experience.

International Amnesty denounced European Union indirect complicity with migrants trafficking

Between July and November 2017, arrivals from the Mediterranean to Italy, have reduced 67% compared with last year same period. This great change arrive after the country, with the endorsement of the EU, have had stablish conversations with Libya and had accessed to provide logistics support and training for its coast guard. An International Amnesty report, considered that this organism operates with collusion with thereof human traffickers, fomenting irregular migration to Europe and violates constantly human rights.

Ways to do business with mafias range from escorting barges to international waters by pre-paid bribes as far as to return migrants directly to traffickers once intercepted in the sea. At the beginning of November, Libyan costal guard hindered a rescue made by the German ONG Sea Watch in the Mediterranean Sea. Even though, it is not the first time north African authorities conduct imprudent actions, International Amnesty underlines that it looks like if it was the first time it is carried out on board of an EU ship provided by European Government, due was donated this year by the Italian Government to north African authorities.

European governments are not only fully aware of these abuses. In addition, they actively support the Libyan authorities to stop crossings by sea and hold the people in Libya; they are accomplices in these crimes. “

In Mexico, human rights defenders and journalists are exposed to different risk situations.

This book presents different texts and analyses the functioning of the Mechanism for Human Rights Defenders and Journalists Protection, aiming to disseminate among defenders and journalists, as well as in society, the way in which their defense efforts are articulated.
